

College Centre Ceremony Friday

PATHWAY TO FUTURE leads to Capilano College's new Lynnmour Centre located in a picturesque setting at 2055 Purcell Way, North Vancouver. (Derek Lemms photos)

NO, IT'S NOT sinking, Capilano College's Lynnmour Centre was actually built into the side of a small hill. The portable labs are just to the right of the picture.

Public Invited To Attend Event

This Friday, November 30, is a big day for Capilano College. At 4 p.m. that afternoon, the Minister of Education, The Honourable Eileen Dailly, will officially open the College's new Lynnmour Centre.

The official opening is a major public event on the North Shore. It marks the completion of the first stage of the College's long five-year struggle to acquire a site for its core facilities.

The College is encouraging the public of the North Shore and Howe Sound to join in the festivities of the opening ceremony, which will be held at 4 p.m. sharp in the main lobby of the new Lynnmour Centre. The actual ceremony and ribbon cutting by Mrs. Dailly will be followed by an informal tea party. There will also be guided tours of the new facilities.

Visitors can reach the College's Lynnmour Centre by following the signs off Highway 401 on to Keith-Lillooet Road. There will be ample parking for visitors.

College Enrollment Nears 2,000

Capilano College has experienced an incredible total enrollment increase this Fall. Final figures show that 1966 persons are registered at the College in one or more credit courses. This final figure represents a staggering 39% increase in numbers over Fall 1972. The increase is probably the highest experience by any established higher education institution in B.C. and perhaps even in Canada.

Largest enrollment increases have been experienced in the full-time students taking 5 or more courses in the College's professional Career programs and courses where there has been a 69% increase in numbers over last Fall. The number of Career program students now represents 40% of the total College numbers as compared to 33% last year.

College Principal, Alf Glenesk, attributes the high increases to a combination of things. "A paramount factor in this huge increase is the opening of the College's first permanent buildings at its new Lynnmour Centre. Also, a major factor is a greatly-expanded community awareness of the excellence and variety in the College's extensive programs and services."

The residence of Capilano College's enrollment, by district, breaks down to approximately 52% from North Vancouver, 35% from West Vancouver, 5% from the Howe Sound area, and 8% from outside the North Shore/Howe Sound area.

330 Course Sections Taught

The 1966 students are registered in 330 different course sections. Some of these were extra sections that had to be opened at satellite centres to handle the enrolment press.

In breakdown, 257 course sections are at Lynnmour, 36 at the Welch Street (Art Program) Centre.

In West Vancouver there are 14 course sections at the College's St. David's (United Church) Centre and 8 sections in the evening at West Vancouver Secondary School. There are also 5 day-time sections being given in Squamish.

OFFICIAL OPENING CEREMONY Friday, Nov. 30 — 4 p.m. sharp

The College extends a warm invitation to all North Shore and Howe Sound residents to join in the opening ceremonies and see the new centre.

A Fantastic Semester

Capilano College is a success. This Fall the North Shore's public community college not only has cause to be proud of its brand new core facilities at Lynnmour, but it has also achieved an enrolment increase which it was said was impossible.

This Fall in the College's 14th semester of programs and services to the North Shore and Howe Sound, it has had to cope with an unbelievable 39% enrolment increase over last Fall. The College now has 1,966 students registered as opposed to 1,418 last Fall.

This increase is the highest reported by any established higher educational institution in B.C. and is probably one of the highest in the country for an established college or university. However, the details of these figures are even more encouraging.

The number of full-time students in the university transfer academic courses has increased 73%, while the full-timers in the College's 11 Career programs went up 36%. In fact, the College's total fulltime students, as opposed to the more casual part-timers, is up 56% over last semester. This is an indication that many more North Shore people, of all ages, are finding their way into full-time (5 or more course load) studies at the College.

The College's course and section offerings also hit an all-time high this semester. Some 330 different sections are operating.

New Centre Practices Ecological Conservation

The College has had a renowned landscape expert directing its site development at Lynn timer. But more than a Landscaper, this man, Raoul Robillard, is a practicing Ecologist and has been (in a rare sense) for very many years.

At the Lynn timer site the College did not clear the land for construction as is the normal practice. The building were sited IN the trees, in natural clearings where possible. Actually, very few good trees had to be removed.

And most important, as little as possible of the natural foliage and forest floor covering was disturbed.

Even where the odd tree had to be removed, the stumps were left so that the total interlocking root systems would not be disturbed and adjacent trees would continue to flourish. The Lynn timer Centre is really in the trees, indeed, practically surrounded by a nice prime second-growth forest. Hopefully, only the occasional footpath or carefully exploring student will penetrate into the natural undergrowth.

As a complement to the natural environment, the College is adding plantings around the buildings. The plantings are being coordinated by Mr. Robillard and Dr. Keith Wade.

THE CLASS WHERE students learn about man's beginning at Capilano College. This is one of the many portable labs set up at campus.

NOSHE'S NOT AN airline pilot. Sally Willetts, 3880 St. Mary's Avenue, North Vancouver, is using one of the many facilities at hand in one of the science labs.

REMINISCENT of Roman amphitheatre, the cafetheatre at Capilano College is the largest teaching area on the campus and is used not only for educational purposes but entertainment as well.

College Plans For Future

The present Phase I facility is wholly inadequate for even a core facility. At least 1,500 of the College's nearly 2,000 students take courses at Lynnmour in a facility that is about the size of a small elementary school. And the space needs required at a community college for adults are surely greater than at an elementary school for a similar number of students.

The Lynnmour Centre is already full to overflowing with every space area far too cramped and many needed spaces non-existent. The space works out to about 30 sq. ft. per student, which is a quarter of the amount of space on which most post-secondary building standards are based.

The College is now well into the planning stages for an expansion onto the existing building. This expansion will be about 40,000 sq. ft. It will provide space for College Career programs now off Lynnmour (Art Program, Retail Fashions and Early Childhood Education), for student lounges and study space, and for more classrooms. It is hoped this new wing will be built in time for the Fall semester of 1975 at the latest.

At the same time as this small expansion planning, the College is also working on a comprehensive plan for a large Phase II development which will be the major facility development at the 34 acre site. This Phase II construction is now projected for completion by 1978.

The College wishes to stress that Lynnmour will only be the core centre for Capilano College. It has always been firm College policy that it will operate teaching and resource satellite centres in other areas of the North Shore and Howe Sound in response to demand. At the present time, there are 5 other College centres operating outside of Lynnmour; two in western North Vancouver, two in West Vancouver, and one in Squamish. Planning is now underway for more permanent and comprehensive satellites in West Vancouver and Squamish.

Older Adults Attracted

Many North Shore residents do not realize that the North Shore's thriving community college is not just a continuing education centre for young adults out of high school.

Indeed, an ever-increasing number of adults over 30 are enrolling in the formal credit programs at the College and hundreds more are turning out to the wide range of non-credit offerings put on by the College's Community Services Division.

The College now has close to 600 people over the age of 30 who are registered in one or more of its credit courses in either the academic transfer or career programs. That is about 30% of the total number enrolled, and 440 of those 600 are over the age of 40!

In addition, the Community Services Division of the College is estimating that by the end of the Fall semester over 2,000 people will have attended one or more of its many non-credit events. Over half of these people are older adults.

What Is Capilano College?

You may not know that Capilano College (among other things) is a fully-accredited institution of higher education in B.C. and offers:

*a full two years of university, including pre-med, pre-dentistry, pre-nursing.

*11 different Career Programs which provide professional training leading directly to interesting professional jobs.

*over 200 different credit courses

*a fascinating non-credit series of Community Services events featuring community concerts in music and the performing arts, forums on community problems, family film series, special workshops and talks on interesting subjects, and special lectures of interest.

The College also offers:

*An open door for admission if you are 18 years of age or over — your past academic standing is of no concern. We do not prejudge what you can do — we let you find out what you can do — be it a full-time course load or just one course.

*A very dedicated faculty who are hired primarily to work with students and create a soothing and scintillating learning environment. They are not hired to publish and research.

*Opportunities to participate in many different learning innovations, including soon to be offered home learning packages mixing such things as tape recordings, written materials, tutorials with faculty, and maybe a bit of television.

*A special welcome to older adults.

*Full programs available in day or in evening.

*Courses also offered in western North Vancouver, West Vancouver, and Squamish.

What Is The Centre?

The new Lynn timer Centre of Capilano College constitutes Phase I of the proposed long-range construction program on the 34 acres of land.

The Phase I facilities total 50,000 sq. ft. of space; 33,000 of this is a new steel-frame building and 17,000 sq. ft. are made up of the original wooden portable buildings the College has been operating out of over the last 5 years.

These Phase I facilities comprise:

*the main College Media Centre (Library)

*the majority of the College teaching rooms

*all the Sciences labs

*the Language lab

*the main divisional-faculty areas

*the Student Services Centre and counselling-advisory services

*special studios for the Audio Visual Resources Program

*the main administrative offices

*a cafetheatre (a student-faculty eating and talking area with sunken bear pit).

Why Centre At Lynn timer?

The main reason is simply that this was the only large enough piece of land available to the College at this time on the entire North Shore.

It may seem to be too far away from the geographic centre of the community

Yet, the centre of population for the North Shore is quickly moving east of Lonsdale.
